ROLLINS HISTORY

1885

Rollins is founded as a coeducational institution of higher learning by the Congregational Church. Classes officially begin November 4.

Alonzo Rollins was a successful businessman throughout his life, founding the A. W. Rollins Company in 1865, a Chicago-based company that sold dyes to woolen mills. Within 10 years, Rollins' business was worth $100,000. He began spending his winters in Florida for health reasons. It was his generous gift of $50,000 that secured Winter Park as the winner for the future location of a college in Florida. The College was named in his honor and officially incorporated on April 28, 1885.

1890

Rollins' first graduates, Ida May Missildine and Clara Louise Guild, receive bachelor's degrees.

The Sandspur

1894 Rollins publishes the first issue of the College's student newspaper, The Sandspur, making it the oldest continuous college newspaper in Florida.

ANIMATED MAGAZINE

President Hamilton Holt and Professor of Books Edwin Osgood Grover launch the Animated Magazine, which allows contributors to present their ideas, stories, and anecdotes in person. A parade of notables come to campus for the annual event—which was held until 1969—including U.S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Nobel Peace Prize winner Jane Addams, author Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, Time and Life editor Henry R. Luce, Dale Carnegie, New York Times publisher Arthur Hays Sulzberger, Carl Sandburg, playwright Maurice Maeterlinck, Justice William O. Douglas, Mary McLeod Bethune, Edward R. Murrow, and Archduke Otto of Austria and Hungary.

1927

1930 In his Nobel laureate address, Sinclair Lewis lists Rollins as one of the four universities in the U.S. “which have shown an authentic interest in contemporary creative literature.”

1932

Annie Russell Theatre and Knowles Memorial Chapel are dedicated; the Annie Russell Theatre stages its first play, Robert Browning's In a Balcony, starring actress Annie Russell.

BIRTH OF THE Bach Festival

1935 Rollins commemorates the 250th anniversary of the birth of Johann Sebastian Bach with a vespers service of his works, thus launching Winter Park's annual Bach Festival.

Rollins' football team celebrates a win against Stetson, ending the year on a triumphant note. Unfortunately, it's the last year that Rollins has a football program; President Wagner eliminates the program, citing financial reasons.

1951

ON MAY 13, 1951, Rollins art professor Hugh F. McKean is asked to step into the presidential shoes, and he accepts. Students celebrate McKean's acceptance with a candlelight procession, and the College is bathed in light to symbolize its rededication.

1952 WPRK

Rollins launches student radio station WPRK 91.5 FM. The first broadcast opens with the chapel choir singing the "Alma Mater," followed by a speech by Rollins President Hugh McKean and a recorded message by U.S. President Dwight Eisenhower.

1960 The Institute of General Studies is founded. Renamed the School of Continuing Education in 1973, the program becomes the Hamilton Holt School in 1987.

1964 Roy E. Crummer gives $1 million for a School of Finance & Business Administration in order "to strengthen the human element in business." The groundbreaking occurs for Roy E. Crummer Hall in 1965; AACSB International awards accreditation to the College in 1985.

1975

Rollins is one of the first six schools in the Sunshine State Conference.

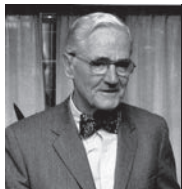

1980 Rollins adopts an Upward Bound Program, which enables high school students from low-income families or from families in which neither parent holds a bachelor's degree to succeed in their precollege performance.

ROLLINS CELEBRATES ITS 100TH ANNIVERSARY

1985

Olin Library is dedicated; the Historic Preservation Commission of Winter Park designates Pinehurst Cottage a historic landmark.

1987 Alumnus Donald Cram '41 is awarded a Nobel Prize in chemistry.

Rita Bornstein is named the 13th president of Rollins College and its first woman president.

1990

1993 Rollins dedicates the first Habitat for Humanity house sponsored by a Florida college.

1997 Knowles Memorial Chapel is named to the National Register of Historic Places; in 1998, the Annie Russell Theatre is also listed.

2001

Rollins launches the Office of Community Engagement as a way to connect and engage students in service, civic engagement, and activism.

2004 Lewis M. Duncan becomes the 14th president of Rollins College; Winter With the Writers, a festival of the literary arts, returns to Rollins.

2005

U.S. News & World Report ranks Rollins No. 1 regional university in the South, a position Rollins continues to hold.

GLOBAL EDUCATION

In 2005, Rollins embarks on an unparalleled effort to internationalize its faculty—an effort that President Lewis M. Duncan believes is core to providing a global education for students. Professors at Rollins are given opportunities to travel the world to experience other cultures. The President's Internationalization Initiative strives to enable every faculty member to have an international experience at least once every three years. Since its founding, faculty members have traveled to destinations in Africa, Antarctica, Asia, Europe, and South America.

Colloquy

2007 Maya Angelou, Francis Fukuyama, and Salman Rushdie headline the Rollins Colloquy, which convenes thought leaders to discuss the future of a liberal arts education.

2008

Rollins launches the Winter Park Institute, a forum for engaging today's innovators in substantive dialogue with the Rollins community.

2009 Rollins initiates The Rollins Plan, an innovative, interdisciplinary approach to general education curriculum.

Rollins celebrates 125 years as an institution of higher learning.

HISTORIC BUILDINGS

1886 Dedicated in March of 1886, Pinehurst Cottage received the historic landmark award from the Historic Preservation Commission of Winter Park during the College's centennial celebration in 1985 as well as a restoration/rehabilitation award from the Florida Trust for Historic Preservation in 2008.

The only remaining structure from Rollins' founding, Pinehurst Cottage currently serves as a coed residence hall, though the facility has had various uses over the years, including serving as a library, chemistry lab, and infirmary.

ANNIE RUSSELL THEATRE

Considered one of the most beautiful and best-equipped small theaters in the country, the Annie Russell Theatre was a gift to Rollins from Mary Curtis Bok Zimbalist in honor of her longtime friend, the legendary actress Annie Russell. The Romanesque theater was designed by Richard Kiehnel of Miami.

1932

The Annie Russell Theatre and Knowles Memorial Chapel opened their doors for the first time on March 29, 1932. Both have been listed in the National Register of Historic Places for more than a decade.

KNOWLES MEMORIAL CHAPEL

Designed by world-renowned architect Ralph Adams Cram, the Knowles Memorial Chapel is best known for its distinctive Spanish-Mediterranean style, specifically the campanile, which was modeled after that of the Toledo Cathedral in Spain. In addition to its external beauty, the Chapel is home to many priceless treasures, including a handmade wood carving of The Last Supper by American artist Ernest Pellegrini, stained-glass windows honoring the individuals who helped shape Rollins, and an Ernest M. Skinner organ.

MR. ROGERS

Fred M. Rogers '51

A music composition major, he became inspired by the words "Life Is for Service," a core value of Rollins' mission engraved in marble and mounted on the wall of the loggia near Strong Quad. Rogers went on to create, host, and direct Mister Rogers' Neighborhood, one of the longest-running shows in public broadcasting history.

'51

Lindsay Phillips '07

Before even graduating from high school, Phillips had applied for a patent on her innovative flip-flop design. She used her time at Rollins to travel to Europe and around the world through the Semester at Sea program. Phillips pursued her dream after graduation and founded SwitchFlops, custom flip-flops that can be worn dozens of ways. She credits her studies abroad for the kaleidoscope of colors and patterns employed in her innovative strap designs. Today, Phillips' venture has expanded to include a growing line of bags and scarves.

THE COLLEGE ANNUALLY:

Contributes more than $200 million to the Florida economy and supports more than 3,000 jobs.

Produces alumni who live and work in the Central Florida area, currently totaling 12,216.

Contributes more than $60 million to the Winter Park economy and is responsible for generating more than $3.5 million in tax revenue for the city of Winter Park.

Generates more than $14 million in state tax revenue through its operations.

Promotes economic development within Central Florida by educating and connecting local business leaders and philanthropists through Rollins' leadership and executive education programs.

PROPERTY ACQUISITIONS AND TAXES

Rollins land acquisitions since 1989

In 1989, Rollins College converted tax-exempt property (SunTrust Plaza) to taxable property, essentially marking the beginning of the commercial enterprise activities of the College. Since 1989, 41 properties have been added to the College's landholdings. Of those:

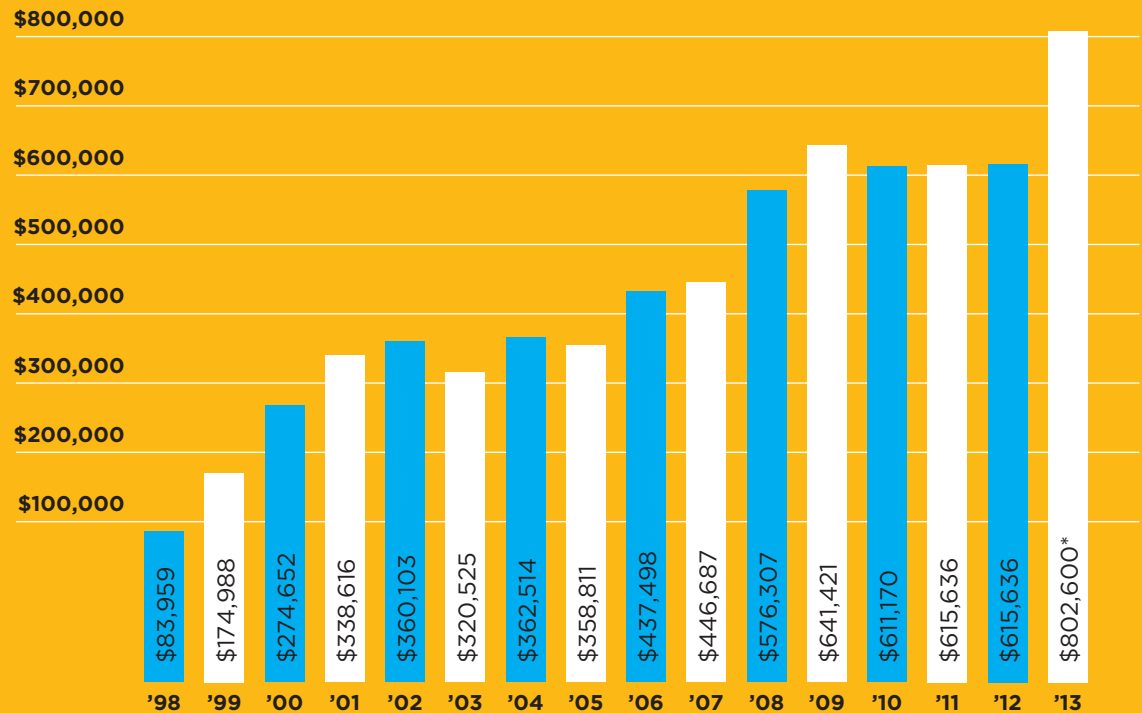

- Eight have been transitioned to exempt status properties (the properties' primary uses are student residences, warehouses, and classroom and department offices).
- 33 properties (80 percent) remain on the Orange County tax rolls. (Uses include 49 percent residential, 33 percent retail and commercial, and 18 percent vacant land.)

ORANGE COUNTY PROPERTY TAXES: 1998–2013

Since 1998, Rollins College has paid more than $7 million in Orange County property taxes—with half of that paid in the past five years (2008–12).

*With the addition of The Alford Inn at Rollins, the College projects property taxes to increase through 2013 to more than $800,000 annually (a 1,000 percent increase over the 15-year period).

Although a nonprofit institution, the College pays a greater portion of its assessed value in taxes than any of the other top six exempt property owners in the city of Winter Park.

Rollins offers a variety of collaborative resources to enrich the community and local businesses.
