Online Report for the President's Leadership Council | December 2015

Rollins Focus

Message from President Grant Cornwell

As I conclude my first semester as Rollins' 15th president, I remain continually impressed by our wonderful college. The faculty are accomplished and dedicated; the staff who support their work and our students' needs are expert and equally committed; and our students are, simply, spectacular. It's no wonder we have the honor of claiming such devoted partners as you.

I look forward to the opportunity to engage with you at the upcoming meeting of the President's Leadership Council, January 14-16. Among the topics we will consider are diversity and inclusion, and faith and spirituality. These are topics not only of national attention, but of specific import to the Rollins experience. I will value your input to our important campus conversations.

Thank you for your support of our mission. There is no worthier task than educating the next generations of global citizens and responsible leaders.

PLC Initiatives Update

Earlier this month, the College's regional accrediting body, the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges, reaffirmed the College's accreditation, including endorsement of the College's Quality Enhancement Plan (QEP), R-Compass, which integrates career preparation into student academic planning.

The QEP's focus on career and life planning was a priority that emerged in discussions with the President's Leadership Council and President's Contemporary Council. Future classes of well-prepared Tars thank you!
