 - Target market would be working professionals attending classes at night
 - Students will be onboarded at the beginning of the program (not a full orientation)
 - Admissions standards need to be comparable to MBA students
 - Faculty Discussion and concerns included:
 - Question: “Who gets priority for classes that are at capacity”
Answer: “the students that register first, MBA students, will have first priority”
 - Question: “Are we competing with ourselves by offering certificates”? Answer: “We feel we are expanding the pool rather than competing within the pool. Also, we feel that some of these certificate students may decide to pursue an MBA with us after earning the certificate”
 - Comment: “I think we need to be very intentional on why we are offering certificate programs and what our objective is”
 - Comment: “I want to be sure recruits for this certificate understand the level of teamwork for our classes”
 - Comment: “We should really invest in research for the ultimate benefit of Crummer and the movement we’d like to see”
