

KNOWLES

Elizabeth Bonker POETRY

I think that I shall never see
A window as lovely as thee.

Sophia and the liberal arts
Embody church values and hearts.

Our queen will go to any length
For wisdom is better than strength.

God's perfect wisdom, perfect love
Shines down on faithful from above.

Christ came to bring God's love and light
Reflected in Knowles' chapel bright.

Vaulted ceilings reach to heaven
Remind us of what we've been given.

Christ as the path back to our God
Found in this place and in the Word.

The only place with values poor
Is in the frieze found o'er the door.

With Natives squat and Euros proud
The message shouts: "Exploiter!" loud.

Christ sees all God's good creation
With love and her contemplation.

Elizabeth Bonker is a junior majoring in Social Innovation. Her life mission is Communication for All nonspeaking people. She wrote this poem about our beloved Knowles Chapel in place of an essay on a final exam.

