

Agenda, December 7, 2005

From: Thomas Cook
To: tcook@rollins.edu
Date: 12/2/2005 7:25:09 PM
Subject: Faculty Meeting Wednesday at 12:30

Estimable Faculty Members:

Please join your colleagues for the final A&S Faculty meeting of the semester at 12:30 on Wednesday, December 7 (Reading Day) in the Galloway Room. The meeting should be brief, for we have only two items on the agenda:

- 1) A proposal from the Academic Affairs Committee to abolish the European Studies Major;
- 2) Announcement by the President of this year's Cornell Distinguished Faculty Awards.

Think of the meeting as an opportunity to share with colleagues a brief convivial break from grading. We will do some business, celebrate the end of the term, greet the coming of the holidays and applaud the successes of the Cornell Award winners. The usual modest refreshments will be provided.

Added attraction — Also, in the lobby outside the Galloway Room after the meeting, students from the sophomore Honors Degree Program class on Genetics and Bioethics will be holding a poster session to display their group projects. Faculty are invited to drop by, look around, ask questions and talk with the presenters.